Any young man who is eligible to become a member of Mackin Council and is not such misses a rare opportunity in life. No association or organization offers to its members onehalf so much for the money as does Mackin Council. Their new club house will be located on Twenty-aixth, near St. Cecilia, right on a good street car line, with a nice green lot 115 feet front by 196 feet deep; two pretty green lawns; cluh rooms and gymnasium furnished with all modern conveniences; a elever set of good, friendly boya for associates; an excellent library of the best books; pool tablea, hilliard tables, card rooms, etc .- in fact, everything that helps to make their council an ideal one, and of which any young man can be proud of lila membership lu.

An organization of this kind does more for the moral, aocial and intellectual improvement of Catholic young men than anything else under the aun. It keeps them in good company, placea good, make addresses, moral books at their disposal, keeps them off the atreet corners, out of har rooms, from gambling their money away or spending it in dissipation. VIC'S PEACEFUL (?) REIGN.

The inherent tendency of English writers and American toadies to misrepresent facts and falsify history in their efforts to justify Euglish rapacity and cruelty is proverbial. Every war is claimed to be an unavoidable emergency in the march of civilization and liberty and it is sought to give the impression that Eugland prefers and strives for peace, that her good Queen abhors and opposes war, and since the jubilee celebration of her coronation she has been lauded as life's journey is over. the kind-hearted monarch whose reign of sixty-two years has been a period of peace and progress to England and mankind. The echo is taken up by our Anglomaniacs, and on each recurring birthday anniversary of the good Queen Americans are regaled with praises in

Long and Peaceful Reign."

Of course, as usual in everything English, the facts of history are purpose in view; for it is a fact that the reign of Queen Victoria, instead of being one of peace, has been a period of war and preparasixty-two years, costing England money, besides the enormous destruction of lives and property and cost entailed upon other people; tribes and nations have been decimated, some exterminated, if not in actual warfare, as a result of Enghas been almost continuously disturbed, its commerce and progress hampered, its sense of justice horrified during all the long reign of Queen Victoria-since 1837. Though all done in the name of civilization and liberty, it has really retarded the one and destroyed the other as far as possible. A brief resume of England's wars since 1837, and reflection on their immediate and subsequent results, fully English arms have triumphed national and individual liberty have been crushed, by extermination if necessary, and all foreign commerce excluded—the right to live and prosper being denied to all save the English—except where powerful nations have forced a relaxation of England's arbitrary and selfish

England's wars during Queen Victoria's reign of peace, 1837 to 1899, cover a period of thirty-six of the sixty-two years, and have cost tures $1,395,000,000 and 123,000 soldiers killed in action, besides the thousands who died of wounds and abled. The losses of property to individuals and the nation as whole are beyond estimate.
